IUSM "Reflections" Project

2009 Reflections: Who Do I Want to Be?

As members of the healthcare field, we all have the unique challenge of balancing the person we want to be with the person the patient wants us to be. As life experiences mold our lives and values, the image of the person we hope to become is constantly changing. This year, we are accepting original works that reflect the theme of "Reflections: Who do I want to be?" for our 6th annual publication.

We would love to hear your stories and see your artwork that reflects who you hope to become, both professionally and personally. This may be a personal story or anecdote, a poem, sage advice, a piece of art, or anything else that evokes the theme for this year. Stories may include...

- how the field of health care has helped shape you into the person you are today
- an anecdote from a mentor or inspirational figure that has been helpful in guiding you to become who you want to be
- how the person you want to become has changed since you first entered the healthcare field
- how you are able to (or hope to) balance who you want to be in your personal life with who you want to be in your professional life

In order to provide a copy to all incoming students in the IU Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, and Public Health, entries must be submitted by June 26th to rhurrell@iupui.edu
